

Health & Family

REFRIGERATOR DOOR

Child tracker fits on wrist, uses GPS

Michael Esposito

08/18/2002

Chicago Tribune

Northwest Final ; NW

Page 7

(Copyright 2002 by the Chicago Tribune)

Think of it as a LoJack for kids . . . but worn on a wrist instead of internally.

Coming soon, the Wherify GPS Personal Locator for Children will combine global positioning system and digital wireless technologies so parents can track their child via the Internet. In the event of an emergency, either the child or parent could request an emergency response and summon local police.

The device is water and tamper resistant, and an attempt to tamper with it will sound an alarm at Wherify's Location Service Center.

The locator sports a hefty $399.99 price tag, plus monthly charges similar to wireless devices such as cell phones.

Wherify said adult locators are in development, particularly for Alzheimer's sufferers.

Visit www.wherify.com or call toll-free 1- 877-LOCATE-1.

PHOTO; Caption: PHOTO (color): (Magnifying glass.)

Copyright © 2000 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved.